EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

The following document is cited:

D1: WO 97 06235 A (PROCTER & GAMBLE) 20 February 1997 (1997-02-20)

Novelty:

- V.i. The subject matter of the independent claim 1 is considered to be novel since the use of odour neutralisers that form Schiff bases upon reaction with an amine have not been disclosed in the above cited prior art. Although the Schiff reaction between an aldehyde and an amine is well known, it has not been previously incorporated into a detergent hand dish washing composition in order to reduce the malodours coming from the amine surfactants. Some of these compounds can act as fragrances as well as being themselves an odour neutraliser.
- V.ii. Consequently the subject matter of the dependent claims 2 - 6 is also novel.
- V.iii. The subject matter of the independent claim 7 is also considered to be novel since the method of using a Schiff reaction in order to neutralise malodours emanating from the amines present in a hand dish washing detergent composition has not been previously disclosed in the cited prior art.
- V.iv. Likewise the dependent claims 8 - 10 are also considered to be novel.
- V.v. Therefore the claims 1 - 10 are considered to be novel. Art. 33(2) PCT.

Inventive Step:

- V.vi. The closest prior art document is D1 since this document also discloses detergent compositions comprising amines and perfume components that reduce the malodour of the amines.

- V.vii. Therefore the technical problem of the present invention has been formulated as:
"How to provide an alternative method for reducing the malodours generated from amine surfactants that must be present since they are effective detergent surfactants".
- V.viii. The present application uses fragrance materials that mask the amine malodours by providing scents that compete with the malodours in the detergent composition for access to the nasal receptor sites. These fragrance materials mask the malodours by:
- (i) reducing the amount of time that the scents emanating from the fragrances require to diffuse into the air, and
 - (ii) increasing the potency of the scent or decreasing that of the malodour.
- V.ix. Since the use of a compound capable of forming a Schiff's base upon reaction with the amines in the detergent composition has not been previously disclosed, the subject matter of the claims 1 - 10 is considered to be inventive. Art. 33(3) PCT.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

- VII.i. Contrary to the requirements of Rule 5.1(a)(ii) of the PCT, the relevant background art disclosed in document D1 is not mentioned in the description, nor is this document identified therein.
- VII.ii. The phrase "... herein incorporated by reference" as used for example in the description on page 3 (line 18), is an expression not to be used since it renders the extent of the protection unclear (Guidelines, PCT/GL/3 III, 4.3a).

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY
EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/US00/06606

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

- VIII.i. The amounts of each respective component of the composition should be quoted in weight. % and not simply percentages.
- VIII.ii. Also in claim 1, the pH value should ideally be incorporated into the preamble part of the claim.

Box III TEXT OF THE ABSTRACT (Continuation of item 5 of the first sheet)

Disclosed are detergent compositions, particularly for manual dishwashing which, by incorporating a combination of anionic surfactants, solvents and certain selected perfume compositions that do not have the malodors associated with certain nitrogenous ingredients such as amines. Also disclosed are the perfume compositions themselves, characterised by 30% to 100% of an odor neutralizer capable of forming a Schiff base when reacted with an anime, said compositions having a p_{tl} of from 8.5 to 12.
